POLITICAL CLASH RENEWED

Daniels Is Given 21 Year Sentence For Slaying Girl

Plea For Change of Venue Overruled By Judge Dexter Bush

COURT ROOM FILLED

Sister and Mother of the Slain Girl Chief Witnesses

PRESCOTT, Ark., July 23.—The maximum penalty was assessed John L. Daniels, 60-year-old farmer and former justice of the peace, by a jury in Nevada county circuit court here late Tuesday, sentencing him to 21 years in the penitentiary for second degree murder in the killing June 9 of 15-year-old Mildred Jobe.

The verdict was reached in one hour and a half. The case was given the body at 4 p. m. and the verdict returned at 5:30 p. m. The 21-year sentence is the heaviest penalty on a conviction of second degree murder. Testifying in his own defense, Daniels declared that he cried: "You have killed your own daughter" in reply to John Jobe, father of the dead child, who Daniels quoted as saying, "You have killed my daughter" after the gun was fired during a scuffle between the two men in which the girl interfered.

Says Was Not Mad
"I was not mad at Jobe," the aged farmer testified. "I can barely remember hearing the gun fire."

Daniels said somebody hit him over the head from behind while he was struggling with Jobe for the gun which carried. The blow dazed him, he said, and he had only a faint recollection of events thereafter. One of the largest crowds ever to attend a murder trial in circuit court here sat motionless during the short testimony of the defendant. Many were standing, and many more stood outside the courtroom about the doors. That Daniels came to the Jobe home and began a controversy over the possession of a shotgun, which Jobe had taken from Daniels' son the day before when he arrested the youth for drunkenness was sworn to by Mrs. J. N. Jobe, mother of the slain child, and Miss Thelma Jobe, sister of Mildred.

Says Daniels Had Gun
Daniels was carrying a shotgun when he arrived at the Jobe home, in the Conway community, about 20 miles southeast of Prescott, the mother said in her daughter testified.

Shortly after his arrival, the former justice of the peace seized the shotgun from Daniels, who seized the barrel and struck Daniels over the head with the stock of it, the two women declared.

At this interval, Mildred, who was returning from a neighboring house, ran to the two fighting men and seized the gun barrel while Daniels held it, they testified.

Mrs. Jobe testified that Daniels thrust the gun against the girl's side and pulled the trigger, fatally wounding her. The child died 15 minutes later, the mother sobbed.

Trial Moves Fast
The trial began Tuesday morning, the state resting its case at noon. Neither side had a great many witnesses and Judge Dexter Bush kept the trial moving rapidly.

The defense lost the first skirmish of the day when Judge Bush overruled a defense motion for a change of venue.

Grounds for the move were that Daniels could not receive a fair and impartial trial in Nevada county due to the sentiment that has arisen against him there since the killing.

The petition set forth that Daniels had been taken to Texarkana under heavy guard shortly after the shooting and had been held in jail there for a week, officers fearing that disorders might arise if he were kept in jail at Prescott.

Daniels is the second Nevada county man to be tried for the murder of a woman in as many days. Obe McCoy having been sentenced to five years in prison for second degree murder Monday night for the slaying of Mrs. Nell Phillips, at Falcon, in May.

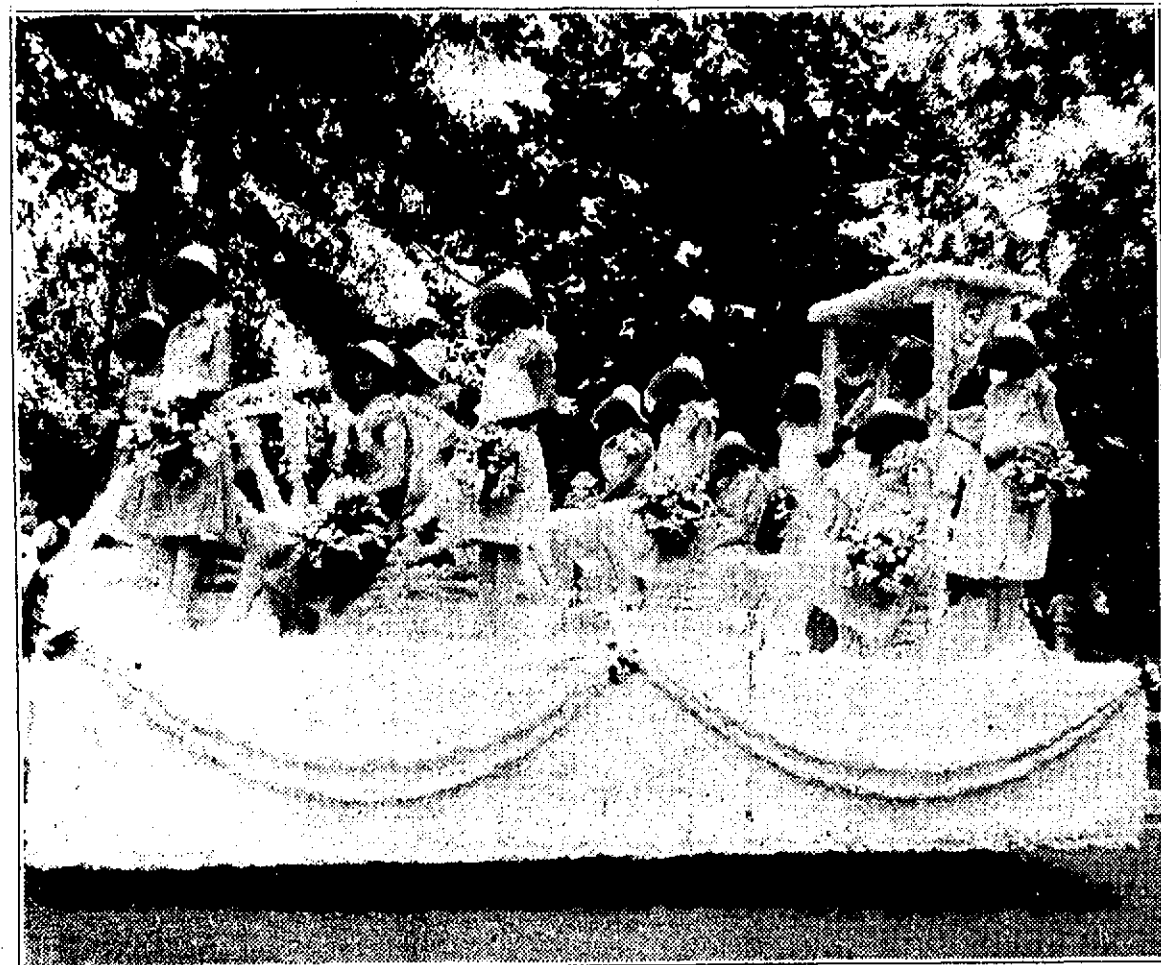

The case presented a dramatic angle of brother testifying against brother, Ben McCoy being the principal witness for the state.

Ben testified that Obe had become angered when warned to cease cursing at the table and had grabbed a shotgun and fired at him. Mrs. Phillips, sister-in-law of Ben McCoy, was struck and killed.

Obe testified that Ben had grabbed the shotgun from a wall and that Ben, Obe and Mrs. McCoy all were scaffolding over it when it discharged.

Coleslaw—What's the matter? Finances bothering?
Cavlar—Yes, I owe Smith $5, and today I've got it, and he knows I've got it.

Girls From Watermelon Land

Queen and Maids Float in a Watermelon Festival parade at Hope, Hempstead county, Arkansas.

HOPE, Ark.—One of the great outdoor spectacles which annually draws 30,000 to 40,000 persons to the Watermelon Festival, held in this city every August, is the Float Parade.

Plans for this year's Festival, which will be held Thursday, August 1, call for the largest and finest Float Parade in the history of this famous Hempstead county event. The 1929 parade, which saw 50 major floats mustered in a line nearly two miles long, set a new high mark in the record of Watermelon Festivals.

Although last year's floats exceeded all others in cost and detail, the 1930 parade is expected to bring out the watermelon motif with new and original designs.

After parading the principal streets of the city, the floats will come to rest at the Southwest Arkansas—Fair Grounds, where the Pageant, free watermelon feast, and speaking program, are held during the afternoon.

A chorus of 50 persons, with a complete musical score written around the theme song, "Happy Days—Melon Days Are Here Again!" will be heard as the visiting thousands crowd the Fair Grounds for the annual feast.

Here in this same historic setting the Fifth Annual Festival will see a new queen crowned for Watermelon Land. Miss Geraldine Busby, the 1929 queen, will pass her scepter on to the 1930 monarch, whose identity will not become known until the close of the annual maids and queen contest at the end of July, only a few days before the Festival date.

Close by, on the speaker's platform, will be United States Senator Joseph T. Robinson, to whom this coronation in Watermelon Land will be no new event. Senator Robinson also spoke at the 1928 Festival, that being his first public engagement after his nomination for the vice-presidency by the Democratic convention at Houston.

He was unanimously extended an invitation to be the guest of the 1930 Festival, and promptly accepted.

Work on the famous Festival float parade, in which 50 major units appeared last year, was indicated by the float chairman, C. C. Spragins, other committeemen present last night being Miss Hazel Arnold and Miss Thelma Cobb. The president of the Business and Professional Women's club, Miss Clarice Cannon, also attended. About 15 floats are ordered to date.

Dr. W. R. Alexander, chairman of the pageant committee, reported plans nearly complete for a pageant and musical show on the Southwest Arkansas Fair Grounds that will exceed other pageants staged at previous Watermelon Festivals. He is being assisted in his pageant plans by Matt Press, manager of the Public Saenger theatre.

The financing of the 1930 Festival is progressing satisfactorily, Chap Weltman told the other committeemen. Much depends on the final sale of maid tickets this week, but the finance committee, of which Mr. Weltman is chairman, already has a considerable amount of money in hand.

Publicity Completed
Newspaper advance publicity on the 1930 Festival is practically complete, according to Alex H. Washburn, chairman of the publicity and advertising committee. One hundred picture and story "layouts" were completed this month, and about 50 have already been placed with newspapers in this section which have always co-operated in spreading the news of Hope's famous free event.

Charles Johnson and Robert Wilson, also of the publicity committee, have completed the task of assembling 25 enlarged prints of one of the copyrighted Hope Chamber of Commerce watermelon pictures, framed and crated for shipment. These pictures are being placed in Northern hotels and in the offices of produce commission houses in St. Louis, Kansas City and elsewhere.

Practically all of the advertising tire-covers ordered this year have been sold, but the publicity committee will make a final drive this week to move the last of them.

He was alleged to have been a companion of Connie Leverett, arrested about the same time on orders from army officers charging both men with desertion. The Hope post is using the funds derived from its percentage benefit at the American Legion Miniature Golf Course, check for which has just been turned over to the Legion by Wayne Dent.

The Legion's percentage from this course will enable the local post to give a two weeks' outing to a local employed boy who otherwise would never be able to obtain a vacation or other travel privileges. He will be one of about 200 boys sent to Camp Gause by all the Legion posts in Arkansas.

Local Tree Sitters Begin Endurance Trial Tuesday

Two local youths, Murph Hanson and Curtis Chambliss, both 13 years of age, have joined thousands of other boys over the nation in an effort to smash the world endurance record as "tree sitters."

The two boys are aloft in the branches of a large oak tree located on west Division street. They began their vigil at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Reports from the sitters at noon today say that the "intended record breakers" spent a comfortable night. "If all nights are as easily passed as the first one we'll not be down for some time they are quoted as saying."

Refueling contacts are made by use of a long rope, friends and neighbors of the boys sending up fuel in the form of three meals a day and nick-nacks between meals. Many messages of encouragement are reported as being sent up to the boys by their admirers.

Two men were shot to death near here today by a 1930 high school graduate who charged that his school teacher wife had been beaten.

Leas Murphy, 20, is held in jail for the murder of Dodge Cannon, middle-aged farmer, and his son Jim Cannon, in a quarrel at Wolfe Bayou near here this morning.

It is alleged that Murphy's wife, a school teacher at the Wolfe Bayou building, whipped one of the younger Cannon children at school yesterday, following which older members of the Cannon family advanced from the back of the schoolroom and beat the teacher.

Authorities said that last night the Cannons demanded the resignation of Murphy's wife as a school teacher. She was on the job this morning, however, and when the Cannons heard of this they are reported to have sent word to Murphy to meet them at the schoolhouse.

The men met there, Jim Cannon and Murphy both being armed, according to reports. Fire was opened and the Cannons were killed.

Texas authorities have wired Mr. Baker that they will arrive as soon as possible to identify the man and the automobile.

Cannon Attacked By 2 Candidates For Legislature

Joe Reed Joins Thompson in Attack at Rocky Mound

ACTION AT PATMOS

Cannon Makes Blazing Reply, But Thompson Renews Attack

Thursday and Friday
The county stump tour will observe the following dates for the balance of this week:
Spring Hill—Thursday morning and afternoon.
Guernsey—Friday morning and afternoon.

The name of the Arkansas Railroad Commission was dragged into the Hempstead county stump tour at Patmos today, where the quarrel among the 11 candidates for representative which started yesterday at Shover Springs, and was continued last night at Rocky Mound, reached new heights of bitterness this morning.

Emory A. Thompson, Fulton candidate, whose attack on Curtis Cannon, seeking re-election at Shover Springs yesterday morning started the fireworks, repeated again this morning at Patmos.

Thompson charged that early in the spring when Cannon was campaigning for lieutenant-governor, from which race he subsequently withdrew, Thompson asked him why he voted for the ice monopoly bill in the 1929 legislature. Cannon told him: "I was seeking re-election."

Thompson said that "they had told me I had to do it." Thompson continued: "Cannon said that he had a bus franchise at the same time, and the Arkansas Railroad Commission folks close to it told him that unless he voted for the ice bill he would lose the bus franchise."

Cannon's Defense
Just prior to Thompson's latest charge, Cannon had defended himself vigorously from earlier attacks by both Thompson and Joe Reed, the latter of whom opened up unexpectedly on the man seeking re-election at the meeting at Rocky Mound last night.

Emory Thompson and Joe Reed are both attacking me with the worst kind of mud-slinging," declared Cannon. "What's the idea? Is this representative's race nothing but an organized conspiracy to keep Curtis Cannon from going back to the legislature. I don't know what's back of it, or who is really interested in seeing to it that I am kept out of Little Rock."

"Joe Reed," continued Cannon, "is a good man, but I see him running around with Arthur Gibson this week. Joe's all right, but Arthur and the boys have gotten him off on the wrong road."

"Both Reed and Thompson say they don't want to go to the legislature with me. I don't think either of them will have to."

"They charge that I am opposed to the preferential primary, and to the income tax. Both of them are dead wrong when they say this."

"I voted against one preferential primary law, as did many other members of the legislature, on the ground that this particular bill placed too great an additional load on the taxpayers. The bill was defeated. But another preferential primary bill will be enacted, on a more equitable cost basis, and I shall vote for it. I believe in the Democratic principles of majority rule—that means a preferential primary."

Favors Income Tax
"I have never opposed a state income tax, and today favor its retention by Arkansas as a means of helping to reduce the state property tax on the farms and homes of the state. The only time I have ever touched on this subject was to suggest a more efficient and less costly system of collecting this tax."

Cannon answered a charge that he voted against a tax on malt by saying: "I voted against that tax, and will do so again. I think that for the state to tax malt where it is known to be used in the manufacture of home brew amounts to a license for the manufacture of liquor, which the state can not morally do. To contend anything else but this is to confess that you are opposed to federal prohibition which the South believes in."

Cannon repeated his statement that he had first voted to table the monopoly ice bill in 1929, and later voted for the bill when its passage became inevitable and when he said he had obtained a compromise of a 10-cent reduction in the price of ice in Hempstead county.

Cannon put forth a new tax proposal this morning, declaring himself in favor of a state severance tax on water-power used for electric generating purposes. "We tax lumber, oil, and other natural resources, why not water-power?" he said.

The battle among the candidates for representatives overshadowed all business circles.

Radio Announcer Slain Early Today

Was Shot By Three Gunmen As He Sat in Hotel Lobby

DETROIT, July 23.—(AP)—Two and one half hours after he had announced the recall of Mayor Charles Bowles, Gerald E. (Jerry) Buckley, political commentator over radio station WMBC, was assassinated by three gunmen in the lobby of a downtown hotel at 1:50 o'clock.

The slaying is a climax of three weeks of gangster killings. The recall of the mayor was brought about by what the public termed inefficiency.

Four hours after the killing the entire law enforcement machinery of the state was in motion. Governor Fred W. Green called out the National Guard and ordered them to encircle the Governor and Colonel George Bersey, ranking officer of the state police troops were on the scene of the murder and had started an investigation. The governor came to Detroit by airplane.

Mayor Bowles had been assailed by Buckley, over the radio station unsparingly. He also attacked the gang slayings that had taken place over the city during the past three weeks.

Flood Chairman Would Save Land
REID CONVINCED PROGRAM WOULD DESTROY ARKANSAS FARMS

MEMPHIS, July 23.—(AP)—Charles Reid, head of flood control committee chairman, said today he believed the government flood control plans unfair to the owners of farms and other property in this region.

Mr. Reid's committee voiced thousands of acres in Arkansas yesterday which it is proposed to inundate with artificial floods in order to control the Mississippi river. One of the principal points the committee visited was Pecan Point, Ark., near Memphis.

"The committee, Mr. Reid said today, 'came here to see for itself. It believes the land which it is proposed to flood for the purposes of river control is so valuable to throw away in this manner.'"

Drops Baby Off Balcony

Smith Offers Some Feed Suggestions

Urges Planting Cow Peas and Crops For Winter
Grazing

The feed situation, except in a few scattered localities like the Ozon bottom, is a serious problem confronting the farmers of Hempstead county. Following are a few concrete suggestions which appear to be the best solution to the problem for the county as a whole.

1. Cut up the corn for stover, and place it in shelter either at the time of cutting or as soon after as possible.
2. Plant the corn land and all other land possible to cowpeas. These may be planted at once if there is moisture enough in the soil to bring them up.
3. Sorghums, like, matze, hegar, etc., may be planted only on the very best soils. These crops when planted on rich soil will make feed, but they are particularly hard on the soil and planted this late will rarely make grain. (English Sparrows feed heavily on seed of these crops).

Cowpeas are undoubtedly the best crop to plant this late both from the standpoint of certainty of a feed crop and for the land's sake.

Plans should certainly be made at this time for the abundant planting of rye and oats for winter pasture. These crops can be planted in the cotton middles in September and furnish abundant pasture which will help greatly with the feed shortage. Abruzzi rye is the variety which really furnishes pasture, and will withstand winter freezes. The Winter Turf oat will come nearer living through every winter here but does not furnish hard the grazing varieties like Applier and Fulghum furnish. N. P. O'Neal has a supply of rye and oat planting seed.

"Ten cents worth of bicarbonate of soda for indigestion at this time of night," cried the infuriated druggist, who had been aroused at 2 a. m., "when a glass of hot water would have done just as well!"

"Well, well," returned MacDougal, "I thank ye for the advice, and I'll no' bother ye after all. Good night."

Schoolboy "Find"

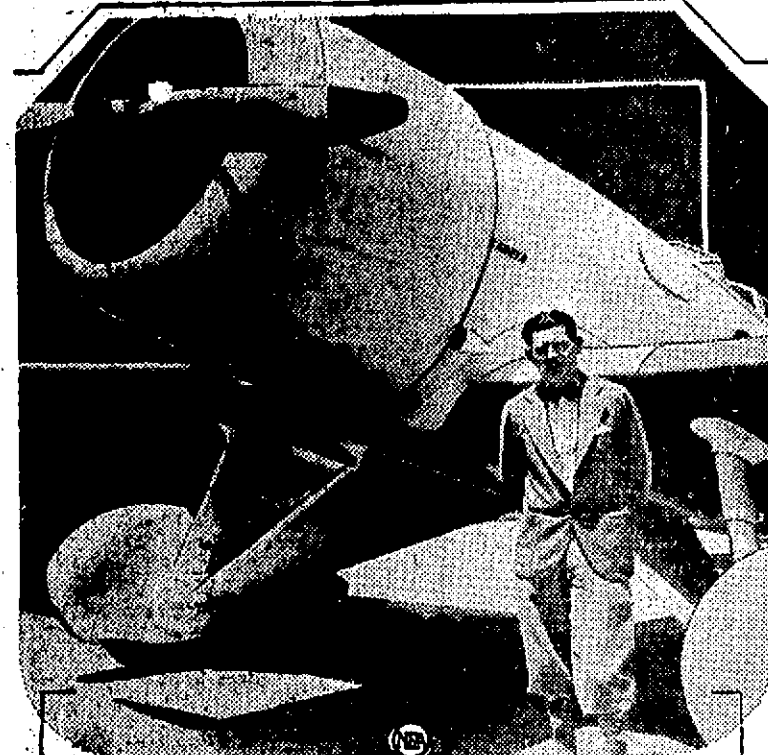

Uncle Sam probably can find a place on his Olympic swimming team in 1932 for 16-year-old John Paulsen, above, the schoolboy sensation of Southern California. Paulsen's breast stroke swimming for Santa Maria, Calif., high school attracted wide attention among western swimming critics this past year. He holds junior national indoor titles for 220 yards, in addition to Southern California A. A. U. marks for the 100, the 200, the 220 and the 440 yard marks within 60-second time.

John D.'s Cousin Quietly 'Carpentering' In Chicago

WILLIAM AVERY

CHICAGO, July 22.—(P)—Up along the lake shore, where a man with a liking for the sea may hear white caps breaking, William Avery sews boards, drives nails and admits he is a second cousin of John D. Rockefeller.

John D.'s mother was an Avery, first cousin of William Avery's father, and she lived on a neighboring farm in New York state. Avery remembers that Rockefeller, as a boy, visited his Uncle Solomon's farm.

Although he has been a carpenter for 44 years, Avery's hobby has been upon the water. In the summer of 1893 he invited his girl friend out for a sail. A storm blew up and the boat capsized. The girl was battling with the waves when Avery tried to reach her. "Better let me go, Bill," she shouted, "you're getting weak." But Bill didn't let her go. They were married 35 years ago.

He has sailed in hundreds of races. He was skipper of the Cherry Circle in 1907, racing for the Lipton cup. He defeated Commodore Price's crack boat, the "Spray." He also flew with many aviation pioneers.

Things You Never Will Find Out
AVERAGES in sports answer a great number of questions. So do statistics. But there are thousands of things you never will find out—and these are the things that make the sports department about the most interesting in the world.

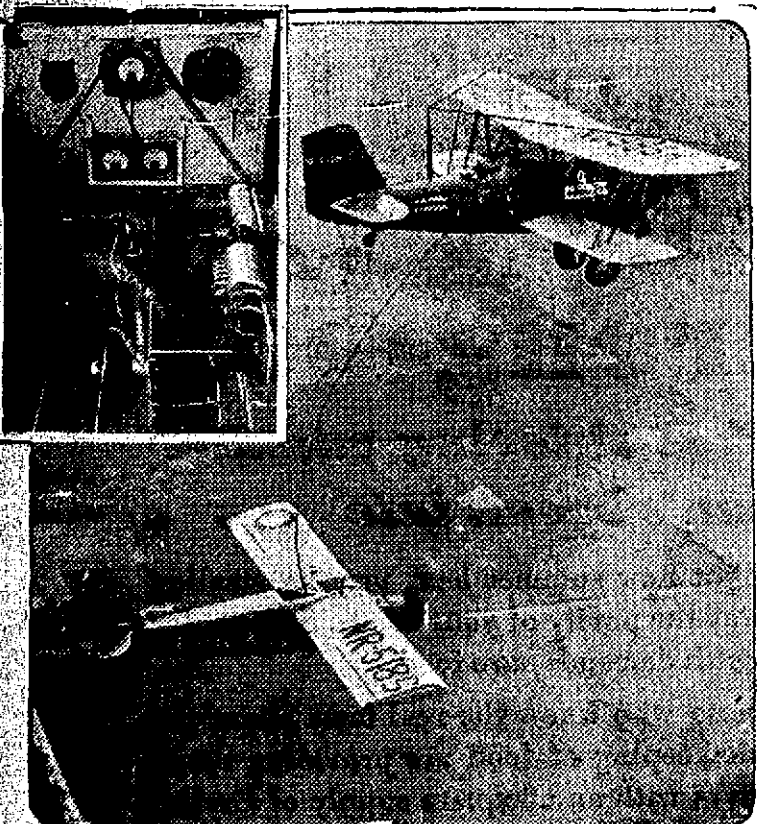

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
AMERICAN defense of the America's Cup has cost about seven millions. Sir Thomas has spent about three millions trying to cop the container. . . . The tragedy of Al Lussman, who drowned in a Maine lake recently after two years of suffering, is one of sports' saddest. . . . he played football at N. Y. U., declaring repeatedly he didn't like the game. . . . wanted to be a fighter, and had a good deal of boxing skill. . . . loved to battle. . . . was seriously hurt in the Carnegie Tech-N. Y. U. battle at Pittsburgh in '23. . . . was near death for months. . . . rallied, but his mind seemed affected. . . . fought with everything he had. . . . his mother had worked hard to give him an education. . . . his drowning, of course, was accidental. . . . any other verdict is unacceptable because Al Lussman had a fighting heart.

The Horse Quarrel
THERE are still people around the race tracks who deem Whilchone a better horse than Galt Fox, though Fox beat the One in their only meeting as 3-year-olds. Shortly after their race, Whilchone developed a quarter crack in training. The followers of the Whitney horse say he was off his oats the day the Fox showed him many heels.

There are legions of close followers of sports to whom one decision is conclusive. They are able to make a man's case. Some of this kind of thing to the banner of Dempsey after Tunney laced the Mauler at Philly. And they are still clinging to the Dempsey cause, with a pretty sound claim to the effect that Galt was knocked out in Chicago. For that matter, the woods are still full of determined souls who will tell you right now that John L. Sullivan was a better man than Jim Corbett.

The Ball and the Pitchers
THERE is the debate about pitchers and the lively ball. It goes on and on and there never will be an answer. Pittsburgh has thousands of folk who are positive Hans Wagner would have batted .750 right through the season with the

Hunter Boys First To Broadcast From One Plane Through Another

Broadcasts from one flying plane through another were made by the Hunter brothers endurance fliers. The plane carrying the transmitter (above) flew over the Hunter machine and dropped a microphone attached to an 80-foot cable to the machine below.

CHICAGO, July 22.—(AP)—For the first time broadcasts from one flying airplane through another have been made for a nation to hear.

The two Hunter brothers, who set a new endurance flight record, were behind the microphone, talking from their ship at various times over both the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting company networks.

A specially constructed microphone, devised to eliminate most of the engine roar, was let down from a radio ship of the National Air Transport into the cockpit of the City of Chicago. The microphone was connected to the transmitter in the N. A. T. plane by 80 feet of cable.

The flyers' voices, husky from weeks of riding behind a roaring motor and from deafness, were broadcast on short waves through the apparatus of the plane above. This broadcast was picked up on the ground and fed through an amplifier and the ordinary lines to the network.

The short wave apparatus with which the N. A. T. plane is equipped consists of an experimentally developed R. C. A. transmitter, using four tubes. Power is derived from a 1,000-volt generator driven from the regular 12

Editor of Mineral Springs Vim Recalls Gold Mining Days In Section

Miners Charged With Running Game Out By Dynamiting

By W. EDGAR BROWN
Editor Mineral Springs Vim
MINERAL SPRINGS.—"That's gold in them thar hills."

At least that was the once popular belief concerning Arkansas, a belief to which veteran gold hunters clung tenaciously.

This belief came so strong in 1885 and 1886, that it resulted in a gold rush which was a replica, on a somewhat smaller scale, of the many stampedes to California and other Western states.

In those days the Ouachita and Ozark mountains included large areas of unsettled territory, most of which was government land. Schoolcraft, an English geologist, and a few other pioneers were the only ones who had penetrated the region and but little was known of its geology. Prospectors reported gold in paying quantities in some sections and a stampede resulted. The mining activities centered in Saline, Garland, Hot Spring, Montgomery, Polk, Pike, Howard, Sevier, Franklin and Pulaski counties.

The annual report of the Geological Survey of Arkansas for 1888, says:

"For many years there has been a vague, but persistent, belief in the existence of gold in paying quantities in Arkansas. Form time to time reported discoveries of this metal have caused much excitement in different localities. One by one the successive 'finds' have proven barren when thoroughly tested.

Gold mining of much later dates than those mentioned in the above news story and geographical survey was had in Howard county.

Vim remembers when Frank Irons, of Fargo, N. D., a former newspaper man, prospector and soldier of fortune, and a brother-in-law to Tom Parish, a pioneer citizen of Howard county, made an effort to develop what he thought was a gold field in the northern portion of Howard in the early 1900s.

Irons sank a shaft to a considerable distance and had quite a pretentious plant, with an expert assayer on the job. This effort to find the precious metal was by way of the cyanide precipitation process, and more or less gold was found in the mine.

These efforts upon the part of Irons were not looked upon with favor by the residents of that section, their principal objection to the operation being the allegation that the dynamiting ran the deer, bear and other game out of the mountains of that section.

Several from this attended the singing at Bodcaw Sunday afternoon, they reported fine singing also a good time. Miss Vera Pierce has returned to her home from Oklahoma where she has been visiting relatives.

Redheaded Pep Makes Musical Romance Smash

"Rarin' to Go!" Clara Bow and a gang of Paramount's most convulsing comedians, including Mitzie Green, Skeets Gallagher and Stuart Erwin, the dumb Axel of "Sweetie," are coming to the Saenger theatre starting today for two days, in one of the "It" girl's biggest hits, "Love Among the Millionaires."

Full of the real redheaded pepper and throbbing love, "Love Among the Millionaires" is really Clara Bow's first musical romance. Introduced effectively as a screen singer of note in "Paramount on Parade" and then in "True to the Navy," Clara now steps forth as the "New Anna Held," gloriously radiant with a voice that puts a quartette of hot hit bands over as no other could.

"Rarin' to Go" is only one of them, but this song, a real jazzy dance number, probably gives the greatest play to the Bow personality. Then "Believe It or No, I've Found My Man," is a joyous lyric of the scorch type. Clara follows this with a rendition of the radio riot, "That's Worth While Waiting For." The theme song of the picture, "That's Love Among the Millionaires," is her fourth number.

Little Mitzie Green, who won hearts everywhere with her imitations of Charlie Mack of Moran and Mack, of Chevalier and Helen Kane in "Paramount on Parade," mimicks Clara Bow in this picture, and sings a song "Don't Be a Meanie," which rivals Jack Oakie's "Alma Mammy" in "Sweetie."

Skeets Gallagher, Oakie's pal in "Fast Company" and "The Social Lion," has a strong comedy role with Stuart Erwin. Both these young men are candidates for the hand of Clara Bow and their intense rivalry provides a running fire of comedy.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH GRANT, artist's model, loves ALAN STEVENS, who is also loved by CHUMMY MORLEY, her best friend. Chummy had loved Stevie years ago and lost her memory when he went away; so, though he loves Judith, Judith insists he must marry Chummy, who regains her memory when she sees him again. Judith studies dancing and becomes star of musical show backed by RICARD and WYON. Later, however, she learns why she really loves him—her rich friend GIDEON, who is infatuated with her. Meanwhile, Chummy learns Judith and Stevie are in love and breaks his engagement, but Judith refuses to marry Stevie, telling him he belongs to Chummy. After a few months Judith believes Chummy and Stevie have resumed their engagement. Meanwhile, she goes to dinner at Gideon's home. He tries to attack her, and she sneezes down a fire escape and hurries home to her hotel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVII

JUDY had her great dinner party, and it was a tremendous success. During the course of it she was more than ever convinced that Chummy was happy, and that Alan Stevie was doing what she considered the right thing.

"What has happened to you, Judy?" Dumont asked her, when for a moment they were alone, walking from Gino's to the Cafe Turf.

"Happened to me, Bastien?" she said.

"No, Judy—not the real you. After you first came out, I did think you'd changed. I thought you'd grown a little hard, and I feared that you might be spoiled."

"No, Bastien, I only care about my old friends—all of you. I'm happy when I'm with you. Oh, I hope I shall never change. And, Bastien, I'm sure Chummy and Mr. Stevie have made it up."

"It looks like it," the young artist said.

"Oh, I'm so glad—so glad!"

"Sometimes," said poor Bastien, "I'm jealous even of Chummy, because you love her so much!"

On the following afternoon, Judy came face to face with Bruce Gideon. He was on foot, with his sister.

Madame de Torres hesitated a moment before she stopped. She looked very hard at the girl, almost as if to give her the opportunity of passing on; but Judy stood still.

"How do you do, Madame de Torres?" she asked. "Isn't it a lovely day? You did run away on the day the other night, didn't you? You might have waited for me, I think. It wasn't so late as all that, but Mr. Punch had a headache, so I followed you quickly—didn't I, Mr. Punch?"

She raised her eyes to Gideon's big white face, and smiled. When she looked at the man and he looked back at her out of his pale eyes, shamed and angry, but covetous as ever, she knew that her revenge was at hand.

Judy had the satisfaction of seeing that Madame de Torres looked foolish. What she thought Judy did not know; but in some way or other she had played up to her brother. No doubt he had lied to her; and now she had found him out. If, dark, bold, humorous eyes went from Judy's face to his, and they expressed as clearly as possible:

"So you have been fooled, my good man!"

"Yes, Thirza, I had a beastly headache that night," he said expansively. "I don't know what it was, except perhaps the rotten show we went to. That ballet danced about as well as I could!"

"Or the champagne you drank at supper, Mr. Punch," Judy put in, regardless of her rudeness, seeing that his sister had drunk almost as much.

HE was simply a doormat spread out under Judy's feet. Madame de Torres smiled.

Gideon called a cab, and saw his sister into it. Judy waved from the pavement. Madame de Torres waved back. There was a look of admiration in her dark eyes.

"Miss Judy, I want to talk to you very seriously," Gideon said. "We can't talk out of doors. Will you—"

"Come back to my hotel," she said.

"They drove there in silence. Judy took up hardly any room in her corner. Gideon shifted his feet nervously the whole time.

Judy had a private sitting room. She was obliged to, because she had to see so many people. It was like all private sitting rooms in hotels. It was full of summer flowers. The windows were open.

"Sit down," said Judy. "Would you like some tea?"

He refused it, and he did not sit down. He walked up and down. He was agitated—more so than she would have believed possible. His eyes would not meet hers. His color was startling. He looked blue about the lips.

"I can never apologize enough," he said. His voice trembled so that he could hardly get the words out. "I was drunk. Judy, believe me, I was drunk!"

"We'll leave it at that," she answered carelessly. "What do you want to talk to me about?"

"Judy, do tell me that you forgive me! I can't rest until you've said so. It was unpardonable. It was monstrous!"

She smiled ever so slightly. She knew that what he meant was, "I was unsuccessful." She had no illusions about him.

"Considering I'm sitting talking to you here, I must have forgiven you, mustn't I?" she said.

She was not afraid of him any more. There was nothing to be afraid of. She had conquered him for good and all. She had him in the hollow of her hand.

"Judy," he said, "will you marry me?"

He could hardly get the words out. The sweat stood in beads on his forehead. He might have been a raw gambler staking everything he had.

JUDY did not turn a hair.

"Why do you ask me to marry you, Mr. Punch?" she said.

"Because I want you to be my wife," he replied, his voice trembling like a nervous girl's singing in public for the first time.

"Funny you didn't think of it before!" she commented. "I don't belong to your world, you know. You have never introduced me to your friends. I should never have known your sister but for that accident, and she was nice to me. I like your sister," she added, with a touch of defiance. "She's a good sort."

"She would welcome you," he said.

He looked at her and held his breath.

"You really want me to marry you?" she asked.

"I want it more than anything on earth."

She knew the note that came into his voice. She held up her cool little hand.

"Listen, Mr. Punch," she said. "Long ago there was a room, somewhere in New York, and in that room there were engravings with pictures on them, and a lot of beautiful furniture. On the floor there was a lovely white bearskin rug, and on that bearskin rug sat Judy Grant one afternoon, and a tall screen hid her.

"From the next room came two gentlemen well known in New York—very well known, indeed—real gentlemen, they were! And they came in and were talking about little Judy Grant, the artist's model."

"What a pity she's not the sort of girl one could marry!" one of them said; and the other said he didn't think of marriage, although he was keen on the girl. "If one did marry, it wouldn't be a little Judy Grant!" he added. Now, weren't they real gentlemen, Mr. Punch?"

Gideon had wholly forgotten the incident; but it came back to him that he and Stornaway had vaguely discussed Judy one afternoon, while looking at the sketch of her that Stornaway had done.

"Good gracious, you were there!" he exclaimed, spluttering. "But of course that was nonsense! You mustn't take any notice of that."

"I don't know that I did," she answered.

"Judy, don't be cruel!" he pleaded. "I know I've been a fool—an utter fool; but now I've come to my senses, and I know there's only one thing in this world I want to make you my wife."

HER head was a little on one side, as she surveyed him. In the back of her eyes the light of keen enjoyment glowed brightly.

"Mr. Punch," she said sweetly, "I wasn't good enough to marry you when you and Mr. Stornaway were talking about me. Why am I now? Is it because I've done something? Because I'm a dancer? I'm not. I'm still little Judy Grant."

"It isn't because of anything,"

Judy, he said thickly. "It's because I can't live without you. I want you to be my wife."

Then there came the great moment, the completion of Judy's plan and purpose; the accomplishment of her revenge for the slight that this man had put upon her and upon all women of her class.

There was before her eyes the vision of a big motor car, with a handsome, dissipated-looking man sitting in it beside a young woman—a pale girl, with yellow-brown, fantastic curls and turquoise-blue eyes—a girl who wore pearls of fabulous size—a girl who looked cool on a very hot day—Gertie Clarendon, once a chorus girl, Judy remembered that hot day vividly, and what Clara Jenks, her companion, had said.

And now she leaned forward, her little hand upraised, as if she were teaching this big man a lesson, her face white and a little strained in this moment of her triumph, but her eyes laughing and her voice sweet and pleasant.

"No, Mr. Punch," she said. "You mean it's because you can't get me any other way!"

Gideon looked at her, his face suffused, his mouth open. He breathed anxiously. She thought he was going to have a fit.

"And, Mr. Punch," she went on, with all the laughter in the world in her voice, "I'm very much honored, but I don't want to be your wife, thank you. All the same!"

Gideon stared at Judy.

"But why—why?"

He was recovering control of himself.

"Ever since I was quite a kid," Judy replied, "I've vowed that I would never marry until I fell in love. I've always thought it took a lot to make marriage worth while."

"But you don't know what you're talking about!" he insisted. "You don't know what you're throwing away! You shall have everything—everything you could possibly want in the world. No living woman has anything like what I'll give you. You don't know how rich I am."

"Money doesn't tempt me one bit," Judy answered. "I can earn all I want, or am likely to want. If people get sick of my dancing, I can be a model again."

"You talk of falling in love," he said. "Why haven't you fallen in love yet? You must have done so. Every man is after you."

"Well, perhaps I have," she answered, with a laugh.

"Then why haven't you married him?"

"Oh, secrets, secrets!" she chided him.

"You can't mean it!" he said again.

"I do mean it, truly, Mr. Punch." The red came back into his eyes. His voice grew thick. He looked as ugly as a man well could look.

"What did you lead me on for? Why did you make a fool of me?"

OUT OUR WAY

GUM must come out or trouble will come in

BETTER STICK TO "STANDARD"

You know how you feel when you have a cold—how your nasal passages and throat are choked up and breathing is obstructed. Much the same thing happens in your motor when you use a "bootleg" gasoline from which the gum has not been properly removed. The sticky residue, or gum, soon clogs the feed pipes and carburetor, as well as the valves and piston rings—and your motor becomes more and more sluggish.

In the great "Standard" Refineries, special care is taken to see that all resinous precipitates are removed from "Standard" Improved Gasoline. Every still-run of this powerful, pure, motor fuel must test free of gum before it is released for shipment.

The gum test is but one of the many tests to which "Standard" Improved Gasoline is subjected. In order to insure dependable, trouble-free performance, this quality motor fuel is checked and re-checked for "initial" and "end" point—fractional balance—minimum sulphur—freedom from all deleterious substances, etc. It must pass every test, otherwise it is turned back into the refinery to be re-run. Strict adherence to specifications during manufacture is the secret of its dependable, year-round performance.

There is a "Standard" Dealer or agency in your neighborhood. His pumps display the "Standard" Bars-and-Circle Trade-mark. It will pay you to patronize him regularly.

Byrd, Tunney and Smith Off of List

America's 'Peerage' Fails To Include Other Notables

NEW YORK, July 22.—(UP)—Gene Tunney, Admiral Byrd, Al Smith and Mrs. Tunney are out of the Social Register, bluest of all blue books, listing America's "peerage."

These omissions are disclosed today in an article in the American Magazine, which tells of Polly Lauder's name being stricken from the Register when she married Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion. The action was similar to that taken by the association dictating entrants to the Register at the time Dorothy Benjamin married Enrico Caruso. Her name was dropped, the article declares. Tunney's name was reported to have been included in the Register, but it appeared only in a supplementary issue to record marriages of persons formerly eligible.

Col. Lindbergh's name was entered immediately after his marriage to Anne Morrow. The Howers and the Coudlers are entered. Henry Ford nor his son Edsel is listed. Thomas Edison is, but Charles M. Schwab is not. Antonio Moreno, film actor, achieved a place in the register when he married Mrs. J. M. Danziger.

The Social Register, which is governed by a highly secret body of men and women, formerly was published in 27 cities, but now in 14 cities. New York leads with 15,000 families. Chicago, Washington and Boston list 3,000 families each; Philadelphia 5,000; San Francisco and Baltimore 2,500 each; Pittsburgh and St. Louis 2,000; Buffalo and Cleveland 1,200; and Cincinnati 1,500. Only 41,000 families out of nearly 4,000,000 in these cities are listed.

Thirteen cities recently stopped subscribing to the Social Register. These are Providence, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Detroit, Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Richmond, Va., Charleston, S. C., Savannah, Atlanta and New Orleans. In a number of cases the cities withdrew their listings on the grounds that their best families are sufficiently known not to require ratings.

other races at Patmos this morning, as it did at Shover Springs yesterday morning, and at Rocky Mound last night. Oscar Rider presided at Patmos today.

At Shover Yesterday
The sheriff's race held the spotlight of interest at the last half of the opening day Tuesday at Shover Springs. The candidates for judge opened the morning program, and the men running for sheriff brought up the end of the program in the afternoon.

Tuesday night all the candidates appeared in brief speeches at the community church in Rocky Mound, this having been a special engagement of the county speaking tour at the invitation of that community.

The Tuesday afternoon session at Shover Springs began with the announcements of the candidates seeking the office of Road Overseer of DeRoan township. These announcements were made briefly, the candidates merely telling of their qualifications to do the work if elected.

Next to speak were the three candidates for the office of county and probate clerk. Those who seek this office are the present clerk, Frank May, Arthur Anderson and Frank Trimble.

Following the aspirants for the county clerkship were the candidates for tax assessor. The only issue in this race according to two of the gentlemen who spoke, is the question of assessing the taxes of the people in the voting precincts instead of have to make a try, to either Washington or Hope, as has been the recent practice. One candidate, Mr. Erwin claimed credit for having made this announcement before either of his opponents. Candidates in this race are Shirley Robbins, John W. Rigsdill and Arthur Erwin.

Sheriff's Race

John L. Wilson, present county judge, opened the campaign in the sheriff's race. He spoke at length on the record he had made as a public official of the county, both as a county clerk and as county judge. In beginning his speech Mr. Wilson said, "After the earnest solicitation of the people of the county and careful consideration on my part I decided to enter the race for sheriff, instead of the term for the office which I now hold." The judge spoke at some length on the question of county agricultural agents, saying that this would probably be an issue in the campaign. He said "In 1929 the local newspapers accused him of not doing his duty, in not allowing certain claims of the county agents, thereby trying to prejudice the minds of the people of the county against him." He gave as his reason for not paying these claims, "lack of funds." The quorum court, he said, could go "scott free" for making up a program which the revenue from the county would not meet, but a county judge would be sent to jail if he did the bidding of the quorum court. He stated also that the county does not need any one to tell "you how to farm, but some one to supply a market for what you do raise."

Robert Evans, the next speaker in the race for sheriff, spoke briefly. He said "that it is being said that I am not a citizen of the county." I will admit that I have been working out of the county for some time, but I have here a poll tax receipt for both my wife and myself and also a receipt for my home in Hope. He reviewed his activities as an officer of the county and DeRoan township in the past.

George W. Schooley, third speaker merely made an announcement; and asked the consideration of the voters on August 12.

Crit Stuart, the next speaker stated that if elected all taxes would be collected in the voting precincts as was done several years ago. He told of his experience both as an office deputy and as a field man, in the office which he seeks.

Riley Lewallen, gave his record as a raiding officer and field man. He said "I have been in 96 still raids in the past three years that I have been an officer." "When you vote on August 2, you vote for or against liquor." Practically $16,000 a year is paid into the sheriff's office, I plan to use at least 60 per cent of this amount for field work." Mr. Lewallen also reviewed his life as a citizen of Hempstead county for the past 22 years.

Jim Bearden, the last speaker in the race for sheriff, stated "my record has been as clear as a hound's tooth since 1927. There is not a person in the county who can bring a single thing against my record since that time."

He further stated that the use of "undercover men" was necessary according to the federal government to catch the persons who are selling liquor. He also reviewed his standing as a special officer, with the state and federal officers as well as the officers of the adjoining counties.

Candidates for the office of prosecuting attorney also spoke in the interest of their candidacy. Those speaking were Millard Afford, John P. Vessey and Pat Casey. The last named is deputy prosecuting attorney and spoke for Steve Carrigan, present incumbent.

Candidates for the office of state Senator from the 20th, senatorial district spoke. The candidates for this office are both from Nevada county, they are L. L. Mitchell and Carl Munn.

Guernsey—Friday morning and afternoon.

Texan Who Wed 14 Times Tells How to Win Them

EL PASO, Texas, July 23.—Take it from Bruce W. Steele, who has been divorced 13 times and is now on the verge of getting his papers for the 14th time—when a man really sets out to make a woman love him, there's nothing the woman can do about it except give in.

"Women are all alike," says Steele. "I've had enough experience to know. Find their weakness and you have them."

Texas Man Finds New Relief For Hay Fever

WACO, Texas, July 23.—(AP)—Allan D. Sanford, life insurance executive, knows a place in downtown San Antonio where he can escape hay fever. It is in a 21-story office building. While on his annual trip to get away from an attack of hay fever, he visited a friend's office.

When he arrived at the resort where he expected relief from hay fever and got none he recalled that his friend's office building had an air conditioning system that filtered everything, including pollens, out of its atmosphere.

He went back to San Antonio and arranged to sleep in this office building. In less than two days, he says, he "was entirely relieved." He lived there four weeks.

French Abandon Autos to Prefect's Discomfort

PARIS, July 23.—(UP)—Carrying absent-mindedness to the point of forgetting one's automobile, pre-occupied Parisians are becoming the despair of the French Prefecture of Police.

Already over-burdened with stores of lost and forgotten umbrellas, pocket-books, fountain-pens, and packages of all varieties, the guardians of the law are now complaining that 1,052 automobiles, abandoned or forgotten on the streets, are now in the hands of the Prefecture officials awaiting the return of the owners.

Australian Desert Teems With Life After Rain

ADELAIDE, Australia, July 23.—(P)—Naturalists are puzzled by the appearance on the great Nullarbor Plains desert of teeming animal life since the recent exceptionally heavy rains which transformed all the low-lying parts of the desert into great shallow lakes.

Rich grasses now grow in the desert, wild duck, kangaroos, emus and dingoes (wild dogs) abound everywhere.

The shallow waters are alive with tadpoles, mosquitoes and water bugs in regions where they had not been known to exist before.

Even the fables of the Central Australian tribes contain no reference to such rains and certainly they have not occurred during the white man's occupancy.

Currency Saved

ZEELAND, Mich., July 23.—(UP)—A pocketbook containing $35, lost eight years ago, was recovered this week by the owner. Back in 1922 Jacob Slaght was assisting his brother-in-law, Koene Vanden Bosch, near Harmon, harvest hay and lost his pocketbook. Vanden Bosch last week while cultivating corn in the same field spied the purse, so worn it fell apart when handled. It was carefully kept together and brought to its owner who turned it over to the United States treasury department for redemption of the currency it contained.

New Stadium Ready

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 23.—(UP)—Notre Dame University's $800,000 stadium will be completed and ready for the first game of the season October 4, when Knute Rockne's gridiron will lineup against the team from Southern Methodist university. A week later Navy and Notre Dame will play the dedicatory game.

Wild Boars Swim Sea to Raid Potato Fields

ROCHEFORT, July 23.—(UP)—Wild boars, hitherto unheard of on the British isle of Oleron, have swooped down mysteriously on the potato fields of the Breton farmers and created havoc throughout the cultivated part of the isle.

The startled proprietors have organized beating parties to comb the forest and rid the community of the voracious newcomers.

It is supposed that they plunged into the sea at the narrow stretch which cuts the island from the mainland at Gauseau, and swam to the opposite shore, where they gained the shelter of forests of Saumonards, Saint-Trojan and Domino.

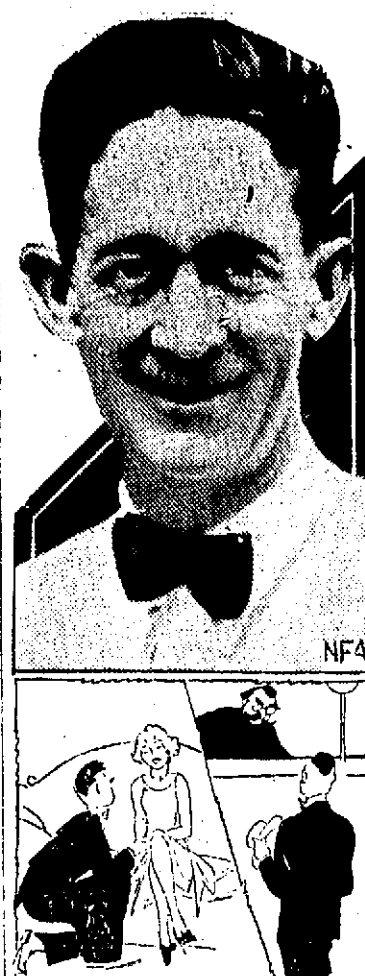

Takes To Air

ANDERSON, Ind., July 23.—(UP)—John W. Lambert, credited with building the first auto powered by a gasoline engine, rode in an airplane at Anderson as part of a celebration of the 45th anniversary of his wedding. Mrs. Lambert refused an invitation for the flight. Two years before Elwood B. Haynes, Kokomo, built an auto. It is claimed that Lambert constructed and perched one at Ohio City, O., in 1891.

Sign Costs Money

BENTONVILLE, Ark., July 23.—(UP)—J. D. Clark, IV, has decided that signs are just a cost of money. Clark lost a 25 mile marathon race from Fayetteville here because he followed a traffic detour sign which made him run five miles further than his opponents. He was among the leaders even with the extra distance.

A contemplated increase in tomato acreage this fall is expected to boost the crop's value in the Rio Grande valley.

Steele is a plumber. He was first married—"Yes, Mary was the first one," he says—in 1911, and Mary divorced him a year later. Then the fun, or the trouble, began.

He was traveling about the country as a boxer with a show.

"We'd hit a town and I'd get a girl crazy over me and we'd be married," he explains. "Then I'd move on and she'd get a divorce. I married some of the show girls."

After various marriages involving girls named Ruth, Goldie, Annie and Rose, Steele married one Fannie, in 1914, and stayed married until 1923. Then Fannie divorced him, charging infidelity, and he married someone else. He was divorced again and a year later he remarried Fannie, who divorced him once more after only a few months of married life. A year or so ago he and Fannie were married a third time, and now Fannie is suing once more.

"Watch me bring her around," says Steele. "I'll bet she dismisses the suit. I can make any woman do what I want. If I want them to love me, if I want them to get a divorce, they get it."

"A woman has long hair and short brains. Find her weakness and you have her. With some women it's music; with others, books, etc. Just find that weakness and play up to it and you've got 'em."

"I married Nellie twice and Fannie three times as an experiment, to prove I could get them back. I'm out to beat King Solomon's record. Women who love me keep on loving me. The only reason they get divorces is jealousy."

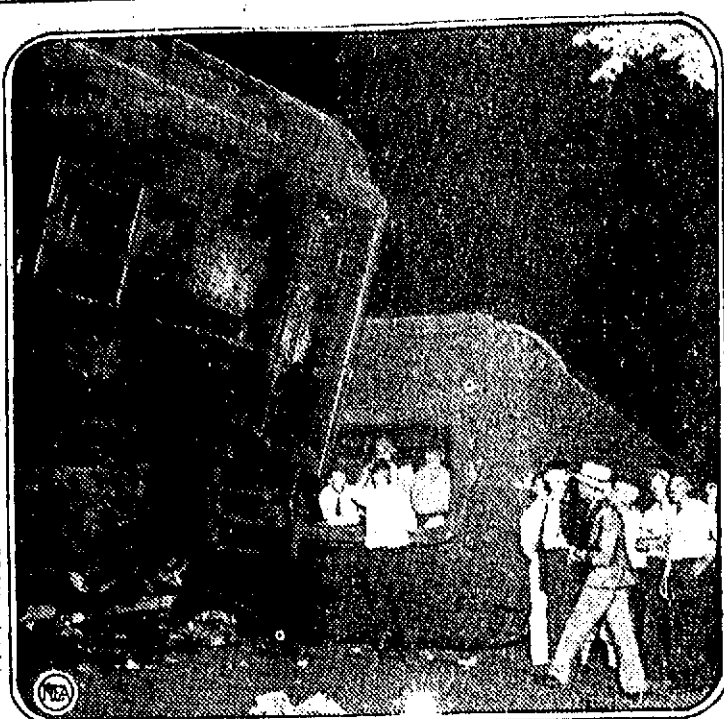

Five of Steele's divorces have been granted in El Paso. Others have occurred in Dallas, Portland, Ore., Globe, Ariz., Seattle and Salt Lake City.

Defies Reichstag

In the spotlight in Germany's political crisis is Chancellor Heinrich Brüning, above. His cabinet has invoked for the first time the so-called "dictatorship paragraph" in the German constitution which over-rides the Reichstag. The cabinet decreed a levy of $115,000,000 in fresh taxes against the will of the German parliament.

After Fatal New Jersey Train Wreck

Two cars were sent hurtling down a 30-foot embankment while another, as shown above at the left, was left hanging precariously on the edge of a retaining wall, in the fatal wreck of a Philadelphia-to-New York Pennsylvania railroad train at South Elizabeth, N. J. With one dead and 50 injured, several investigations were opened in an effort to fix responsibility for the accident. Three motorists whose car rolled off the tracks and caused the derailment were jailed.

Calves Are Twins

LOGANSPORT, Ind., July 23.—(UP)—Ben and Fred Uifer, Boone township dairymen, claim honors for Madge

Guernsey cow on their farm, for production of twin calves. Three sets have been born to the cow within the last two years. All of the first two sets were females, while the latest pair was a male and a female.
